Food Safety Training

ServSafe training programs have been recognized and accepted by more federal, state and local jurisdictions than any other food safety education and training program for nearly 40 years.

ServSafe was developed by the National Restaurant Association, and is a respected training and education program throughout the State of Michigan.

The Michigan Food law requires all food service establishments to have at least one manager certified in food safety. Managers with the ServSafe Food Protection Manager Certification meet this requirement.

Foodborne Illness & Education

The Center for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) estimates that 1 in 6 Americans (48 million people) become ill every year from a foodborne illness. Of those ill, 128,000 are hospitalized and 3,000 die. A monetary cost is also associated with foodborne illness due to lost income from being sick and medical bills. An upside to foodborne illness is that it is completely preventable. Through education of food service employees and active oversight by food service managers, illness caused by improperly handling food can be prevented. ServSafe helps achieve this by educating food service employees on safe food handling practices and provides the skills to properly oversee food processes within a food facility. This education and skill building will not only protect the public from a foodborne illness but also protects the food facility from the damage that a foodborne illness outbreak can cause to their business.
