Supporting family well-being

Your clients’ health makes a difference in quality of life. Yet, an individual’s health and well-being depends on a complex mix of factors—including health education.

As a professional with limited time and resources, how can you ensure your clients have access to the educational programs they need?

We’re here to help

Make Michigan State University (MSU) Extension your partner of choice in helping your patients and their families achieve and maintain optimal health. We provide educational programs that empower individuals and families to make positive lifestyle choices. Using a holistic approach, we address the issues that concern your clients: building healthy relationships, preparing food safely, staying physically active, getting proper nutrition, preventing and managing diabetes and other chronic diseases, and more.

Expert resources in your community

We are educators, helping people improve their lives by bringing MSU’s vast knowledge and resources directly to individuals, families and communities.

MSU Extension works alongside you and other local experts, complementing efforts already in place. We’re local, accessible and ready to work with you and your clients on relevant wellness issues.

Impact-driven programs

MSU Extension offers effective and evidence-based programs that help individuals and communities in measurable ways. Using a community-based approach, our educational programming promotes healthy lifestyle choices, empowering each individual to acquire the skills that support his or her personal health.

The classes have value for anyone who is willing to actively participate ... It is a great resource to be able to offer parents in our community!
