Deployment involves moving an individual or military unit within the country or to another country. A mission or task might include training, supporting communities during times of disaster, helping foreign countries or fighting in a war. The many changes happening with each departure and return create difficulties for both service members and their families.

PRE-DEPLOYMENT ACTIVITIES
- Draw a map with your child of your neighborhood as Lizzie did in one of her letters. Include all the important places. Use a virtual map computer program to view your neighborhood from the sky.
- As a family, pick out a star that your service member and family members can look up at while your service member is gone. Draw two maps of the star’s location. Keep one map to display in the house and give one to your service member to have while deployed. Then family members and the service member can look up at the same star in the sky even though you are far apart.

DURING-DEPLOYMENT ACTIVITIES
- Draw maps with pictures of trips that you take together as a family and send them to your service member. Include simple trips to the grocery store or to a park, or vacations that you take. Use the map that Lizzie drew of her soccer trip as an example.
- Make a special “hidey hole” in your house that your child can use when he or she needs some alone time. Place comfortable pillows and blankets in the hidey hole, and post pictures of your service member there to keep the child company.
- Fill a small photo album with pictures of everyday activities such as ball practice or a visit with Grandma to send to your service member. Help your child make captions for the photos.

POST-DEPLOYMENT ACTIVITIES
- As a family, draw a map of where your service member was deployed. Include general locations such as the meal tent or the place he or she slept.
- Make a picture list of all the things that your family will do with your service member such as get ice cream, look at pictures, watch a movie or play outside. Check them off as the family participates in them.
- Make an activity box. On small strips of paper, have family members write down free activities that they’d like the family to do such as ride bikes or participate in game night. Put the strips of paper in the box and have a family member choose one for family time.
