Back to nutritional management

Magnesium (Mg) deficiency

Symptoms of Mg deficiency are seen periodically, particularly on sandy sites. A distinctive pattern of chlorosis develops between the main veins of leaves. These regions may turn yellow to bright red while tissues adjacent to the main veins remain green. Older leaves at the bases of canes and shoots show symptoms first. Young leaves at the tips of shoots are seldom affected.

![Magnesium deficiency symptoms]

Symptoms of Mg deficiency may vary in color and usually develop later in the summer.